

Dear FCC Representative:

I was amazed to read that you would consider changing the telephone consumer protection act in New Jersey. The telephone should be used as we consumers would like to use it, and that means keeping out unwanted solicitors' phone calls. They (solicitors) do not pay for my telephones or my phone connections or my telephone book listings, do they? Why then should they have any choice about which calls I receive into my home?

Please do not repeal or soften the laws in New Jersey on this important civil liberties issue.
